We have nothing of importance to report in the stock market. Prices are unestited, and has very several condition. Notwithstanding the complexion of the political and commercial intelligence by the Baltic, a feeling of distrust and apprehension exists, calculated to increase and strengthen the depression in the stock market. It was the impression in London, previous to the departure of the last packet, that the great and rapid advance in quotations for French securities was the effect of purchases made purposely for such a result—that it was not caused by the return of confidence. This being the general impression, a reaction was anticipated, and financial circles were in a high state of excitement. The steamship Canada left Liverpool on the 13th inst., and we may have her news any moment, over the wires from Halifax. She will bring three days later news, and it may be important. It will be a long time before public affairs get settled down in Europe. We doubt if there will be, during the existence of the present generation, any permanency in political matters in the Old World. Moneyed men, business men, the manufacturing and mechanical classes, are all anxiously looking for peace and quiet, without much prospect of realizing their wishes. It is ruinous to every branch of industry, to be kept in continual slarm. This has been realized to such an extent that a large amount of capital is about being withdrawn from employment in Europe, and invested in this country. Previous to the coup d'etat of Lous Mapoleon, such was the intention of many parties, according to the London Times; and since, we have no doubt the feeling has extended, and the transfer within the next twelve months will reach a large amount. A comparison of the steady course of public affairs in the United States with the turbulent, uncertain, unsafe state of things through out Europe, must have a great influence upon the minds of capitalists, who are proverbially timid, and easily alarmed. This feeling will soon operate more powerfully upen the mov strengthened and consolidated by the withdrawal of capi tal and still from Europe, such as, up to this time, never has been realized.

Revolutions in Europe never have been particularly injurious to our local interests. Great Britain has invariably been the greatest sufferer. The people of the continent have heretofore been largely indebted to England, in the way of trade, and whatever occurred to weaken their ability to pay, of course proved more or less detrimental to British financial and commercial interests. We have never yet been in that position. We have heretofore been debtors, instead of creditors, of European nations, and, as we have always intended to, and have ever been able to, pay our debts, it made very little difference to us, as far as that was concerned, how frequent or how protracted political reit made very little difference to us, as far as that was concerned, how frequent or how protracted political re-volutions became. It is the change in our position that will change the operation of these movements. In the course of time, we shall become the financial regulators of the world. New York will be, what London is, the great centre, around which all the commercial transac-tions of all nations will revolve. It will be to the world what it is now to the United States, and we shall be as much affected by any political revolution or commercial revulsion in any part of the universal globe, as we are now by any disaster in any part of this country. We shall then be more sensitive, more anxious relative to every public event at home and abroad, and it would be

dollars in American gold. The packet ship S. M. Fox, for Havre, carried out one hundred and five thousand dollars in specie.

The variations in quotations for stocks, to-day, do not amount to much. At the first beard, Canton advanced M per cent; Norwich and Worcester, M; Harlem, M; Eric Railread, M. New Haven Railroad declined M per cent. At the second board, Eric Railroad fell off M per cent. There were large transactions in Reading, but the

The Liverpool cotton market was, at the last accounts improving, after the depression of the previous month or two. Whether this advance will be sustained or not, is a question of considerable importance and much doubt. The manufacturing interests were in a prosperous condition, but much depends upon the position of things on the Continent. Peace and quiet will give the manufacturing classes of Great Britain employment, and markets for their fabrics; while agitation and revolution will seriously reduce the consumption, and of course reduce the demand.

to $500,000, were opened by the Comptroller, at Albany, yesterday afternoon, in the presence of the State officers and a number of capitalists. The aggregate bids amounted to $1,026,000—more than double the amount that was required—at a premium ranging from par to 2.63 per cent premium. The loan was awarded as follows—

$500,000 The Canal Board have adopted a resolution directing the Canal Commissioners, together with the State Engineer, and the Division Engineer having charge of that portion of the Canal where the work is to be let to con tract in all cases with the lowest bidder, when, in the judgment of the said Board, he has the ability to perform factory security. In no case, however, is more than $200,000 worth of work to be awarded to one company or person, except where the work cannot be advanta

The London Board of Trade returns for the month ending the 5th November, continue satisfactory, although, as compared with November, 1850, there is a decrease of £130 726 in the value of our exports. Thi amount is comparatively trifling; for the first ten months of the year our total exports have been £58, 128,000 against £55,058,000 in the corresponding period of last year, showing an increase of more than £2,000,-

The official returns of the Bank of France, made up for the week ending the 4th of Dec., compared with the preceding weekly statement, show a diminution of the cash on hand of 4.700,000 and of 4.500,000 in the balance to the credit of the treasury. The discounts are increased f 6.400,000, and the circulation f 10.400,000.
